

It's Time to Take Out the Trash!

December 2008

I am sure that more than a few of you will take umbrage with this month's entry. Honestly, I couldn't care less. If you are offended then all I can say is you are damn lucky that I am not King of the World. I don't know about you, but I have had enough of this being politically correct bullshit! Aside from the younger generations sense of entitlement, which is a whole other story, political correctness has almost single handedly turned this country into a place, where everyone no matter what their knowledge, skill level or appearance deems feasible is entitled to participate in whatever they want in turn wasting others time and money. In my opinion it is the number one contributor toward what I call "The Pussification of America". A society where un-motivated pussies have become the mainstream and a vast majority of the rest of us seem more than fine carrying them through life. A society where common sense has gone right out the window. A society where those who work hard and choose to go the extra mile seem to be a dying breed. It worries me what kind of world my child will inherit. I can only hope they will be the chosen one to bring sanity and rationalism back to our culture. I have a rather lengthy list of some of the contributing factors. I have chosen a select few to get off my chest.

Across the country many youth sports leagues have started to adopt a rule where score is not kept in games, because they don't want kids to feel sad because they lost. What is the fucking point then? You might as well not require they wear uniforms anymore because some may not look as good as others wearing them, or it isn't their favorite color, or not everyone can have the same number. Winning and losing is a necessary part of society! It helps build character, determination, a strong work ethic and the ability to overcome obstacles. So I'm sorry if Sierra or Dakota aren't athletic enough and can't compete with the other children. They are the kind of kids "Spelling Bees" were created for.

Speaking of sports, when are we just going to say enough is enough regarding the W.N.B.A. The Women's Professional Basketball Association has cost the N.B.A. billions of dollars in losses, all because they don't want to discriminate. I ask you ladies, do any of you really give two squirts of piss about this? If you do, you are in the vast minority. Across the land most of the arenas are barely half full and that's with a majority of the tickets being comped to youth programs. If the N.B.A. had the same experience it would cease operations, yet year after year we are force fed low scoring, poor shooting, missed lay-ups and looking at ass ugly women that look like they just broke out of prison. If you want to sell tickets get a bunch of models to play topless in six inch heels. Even though the final score may be 3-2 you would have a packed house night after night.

Remember when people were Black, White, Asian, or Mexican? I reluctantly used the term African-American the other day, because I was at a work function and just a few years ago I remember being chastised by multiple people when I referred to someone as being "Black" when referring to their ethnicity. I was told the term "Black" was offensive and the correct term was African-American. Well apparently I missed the news conference earlier this year announcing that the correct term again is "Black"....What the Fuck! That's it! I am done. I don't have the time or interest anymore to keep up with the term du jour. The irony of all this is all the people telling me this are White, and honestly have probably had very little if any exposure to black people. The whole point of civil rights movement was that so everyone was treated fairly regardless of their ethnicity. So then why can't we just all be American's?

Race isn't the only offender. Now it has moved on to professions. I was in an office the other day and the girl answering the phones at the front desk had a business card holder. Her title with the company was listed as "Front Desk Administrator". I shit you not. Who led the anti receptionist revolution? "Look that up for me toots, and while you are at it get me a cup of coffee." When I was single I had a lady come in once a month and clean my house. When I referred to her as the maid, a friend told me the correct term was "Housekeeper" or "Cleaning Lady". Go piss up a rope....If the person scrubbing my toilets really had an issue with it I doubt she would have worked for a company called "Merry Maids".

California schools are no longer allowed to require that kids say the pledge of allegiance. This is all because one, yes one father took offense to the phrase "One nation under God" because he is an atheist and some spineless judge agreed. While I am not a religious person, it chaps my ass that we are willing to flush Patriotism and honor for our Country down the shitter because of one person. Fuck him. I hope he gets tortured anally by a gang of terrorists, then set on fire, while the U.S. Military turns their backs. Speaking of other school matters. Schools are no longer allowed to have Christmas pageants, or a Halloween festival. It is now Winter Pageant or Harvest Festival. All this is because not everyone celebrates Christmas and some feel Halloween represents demonic beliefs. I find that ironic because I attended Catholic school for a couple of years and they had no issue with Halloween. In fact, the scariest haunted house I have ever been in was at that same church. People need to pull the pole out of their keesters and lighten up. You are free to not attend or organize your own function. Nobody is stopping them from celebrating what they choose to, so why are we allowing them to do that to the majority of the population.

Finally, if you cannot speak English, then get the fuck out of this country! I don't care where you came from or the color of your skin, if you can speak and write in English and are willing to hold down a job and pay taxes, then I welcome you with open arms. I like the fact that everyone is different in their own way and everyone looks different. However, I will be god damned if I will continue to struggle to communicate every time I hail a cab or drop off my dry cleaning, or ask them to hold the onions on my burger. As my wife says "it is time to remove the press 2 option when calling for service". Would you moved to France if you couldn't speak French? Would you expect France to not only allow you to vote, but to print the ballot in English for you? You wouldn't? Then why do we? There isn't a trash bag big enough to clean up this mess.
